

Questions on coding conventions, v1.14.1

For Alex Gorbenko · 26 September 2026

1. What changed

The bid-terms columns you confirmed on 24 September are in v1.14.1 of the extraction instruction; this document replaces that day's questions. Austin has since decided some points and adopted provisional answers to others in v1.14.1, a shorter version that gives each recurring case a default; a later version changes any you reject. Some answers, decided and provisional, depart from a recommendation you saw or from a rule or wording you confirmed; each is marked Yes under "Changed".

How to answer. Circle Yes, No or an option, or write a comment. Question numbers are those of 24 September; pages are the filings' printed pages; C1 to C19 are the excerpts in part 4; small grey labels are Austin's references.

2a. Decided, for information (comments welcome)

Rule	Case	Changed?
Contingent payments. D ₄ A CVR or earnout is part of the price, in its own columns (Price low and high are upfront only), and alone neither makes a bid Heavy nor prevents None.	Mac-Gray, Party B, 18 September 2013: $19.00 cash plus options Party B valued at $2.50, so upfront $19.00 and CVR/earnout $2.50 (p. 36; C1).	Yes. The draft Part A listed “a contingent part of the price” among the conditions.
Exclusivity. D ₁₄ , R ₄ Never changes Formality or the Conditions level. Only a period of two weeks or more that the filing ties to remaining diligence alone, and does not call confirmatory, counts toward Heavy; a period that also covers exclusivity or negotiation does not.	Synacor, Company E, 18 September 2020: about five weeks' exclusivity; not Heavy on that, normally Unclear (pp. 33–34; C2).	Yes. Question 6(a): A (Company E Heavy) was recommended; B follows your note that exclusivity should not make a formal bid informal.
A later exclusivity request. D ₁₅ Made with no other change, it is its own Exclusivity changed row and leaves the earlier bid unchanged; made with a bid, it is coded on that bid's row only.	Penford, Ingredion: the 14 August 2014 request is its own row; the 10 August bid is unchanged (pp. 25–27; C3).	Yes. The rules you confirmed also coded it on the standing bid.
Same offer. D ₁ , R ₁ When a bidder says its earlier offer stands (reiterates, confirms, repeats or holds it), the row copies that bid and changes only what the filing says changed: the date and round always, Formality by its own route, and any condition reported anew; the Note reads “Same as #n”, and the copied price is not a new price observation. No other row copies an earlier one: a revision is coded from its own communication.	Mac-Gray, Party A, 18 September 2013: reiterates its 10 September offer, which had no firm financing commitment, as best and final; the copy is Heavy on financing and Formal, as it answers the final request (pp. 35–36; C1). A revision with a new price that is “otherwise” unchanged is not copied: sTec, WDC, 10 June 2013 (p. 32; C4); Meredith, Party B, 20 April 2021 (p. 67; C5).	Yes. The rules you confirmed copied all earlier values when the filing said the other terms were unchanged; now only a bid the bidder says stands is copied.
Same-price commitment changes. D ₁₃ , H ₄ A same-price change to the bidder's commitments (reverse fee, sponsor guarantee or damages cap, financing or closing conditions) is a Bid row with the price blank, and not a new price observation; the target's termination fee goes in a dated Note.	Mac-Gray, CSC/Pamplona at $21.25: the 21–23 September 2013 package and the proposals of 5 and 8 October are Bid rows; the target's $11 million fee is a Note (pp. 37–41; C6).	No.

Comments on 2a:

2b. Provisional: yes or no

#	Rule	Case	Changed?	Agree?
1	“No financing condition”. D5 A bid so stated is Committed, even with an unsigned or draft debt commitment or only highly confident lender support; the Note records the lender documents and any reverse fee.	Kraton, Parent, September 2021: draft debt commitment letter; $63 million reverse fee. Committed (pp. 38–40; C7).	No. Consistent with option B of question 6(b), which was recommended.	Yes No
Comment:
2	Partial-company bidders. D7 Recorded, but outside whole-company live counts and the auction screen; a bidder switching to a partial offer leaves at the switch, recorded as Withdrew, “continued on a partial basis”.	Kraton, Party K (chemical segment only) (p. 35; C8). Synacor, Company E: Withdrew on 14 December 2020, continued on a partial basis (pp. 34–35; C9).	Yes. Question 2: C was recommended; B fits your remark that such bids “do not compete against bids to sell the entire company”.	Yes No
Comment:
3	Rounds. D8; v1.14.1 D6 After round 1, a round opens only when the target (a) selects who advances and asks them for new offers; (b) first asks for final, binding or best-and-final offers, even from unchanged bidders; (c) with no final round yet, starts definitive negotiation with selected bidders; or (d) asks for offers again after a pause of 30 days or more with no request, or after an exclusivity period with one bidder ended. A selection that asks for no offers opens no round; the round opens at the request that follows. Asking the same bidders to improve continues a round. Finality is the procedure the target announced.	Reopening under (d): Synacor, 27 October 2020, after Company E’s exclusivity ended (pp. 33–34; C2, C9); Datalink, 1 October 2016, after Insight’s exclusivity lapsed (p. 32; C16). Maps: 3.1.	Yes, in part. Question 3: A, unchanged in substance; the triggers are now a closed list, “after a suspension” became the 30-day or ended-exclusivity test, and an offer-less selection opens no round (3.1).	Yes No
Comment:
4	Merger-of-equals talks. D17 No control or premium test; the counterparty stays outside the counts unless the filing reports that the target is being sold to it, and the talks are dated events.	Synacor, Company B, October 2018 to March 2019 (p. 30; C10).	Yes. Question 4: C was recommended and is withdrawn; this is neither A (no rows) nor B (a sale attempt with Company B as a bidder).	Yes No
Comment:

#	Rule	Case	Changed?	Agree?
5	Price-only revision: Formality. D9; v1.14.1 D1 Formal only if it qualifies on its own (a markup or definitive document with it, or an answer to a final solicitation); a reference back to earlier Formal terms, the target negotiating from an earlier markup, or later document work, is not enough.	Providence and Worcester, G&W, 26 July 2016: no route of its own, so Informal (pp. 29–30; C11). sTec, WDC, 10 June 2013: refers back to its 28 May terms, but has no route of its own, so Informal (p. 32; C4). You coded G&W Formal, WDC Informal.	Yes. Question 5: B was recommended; it also made G&W Formal, as the target negotiated from its markup. WDC's 10 June bid now matches your coding.	Yes No
Comment:
6	Price-only revision: conditions. question 5, second half; R2 Coded from what the filing says about the revision, from its communication up to that bidder's next bid, exclusivity, exit or signing, forecasts included; silence is Not stated; nothing is copied from an earlier row unless the bidder says its offer stands (2a).	Mac-Gray, Party B, 18 September 2013: the package is silent on financing, but the committee noted on 19 September that Party B “would likely be financing” with third party debt, so Financing Contingent and Heavy (pp. 35–37; C1).	Yes, in part. As option B, except that what the filing says after the bid, up to the bidder's next row, now counts.	Yes No
Comment:
7	Missed due dates. D10 A bidder that misses a due date but carries on (asks for time, is invited to continue, or bids later) gets no exit and no re-entry; the miss is its own dated event. “Did not submit” is used only where participation ends.	sTec, Company D: missed the 28 and 30 May 2013 due dates, asked for time, was invited to continue; live until it withdrew on 5 June (pp. 30–32; C12).	No. As reading 2 of part 2.	Yes No
Comment:

#	Rule	Case	Changed?	Agree?
8	Deadlines. D11 The first that fits: Extended, if a later due date was set for any bidder; Extended (late bid accepted), if the target considered a required response that arrived after the date; Enforced, if after the date the target acted on the bids in hand (evaluated, selected or gave feedback); Passed without action, if bidding continued with no reported step on them; Unclear, if the filing reports nothing after the date.	Mac-Gray: 23 July and 9 September 2013 Extended (late bid accepted), as day-late responses were considered; 18 September Enforced, as the committee acted on the three proposals on 19 September (pp. 32–37; C13). PetSmart, 30 October 2014: Enforced; the bank heard the parties' rationales and the board selected four bidders on 3 November. Bidder 2's raise revised an on-time bid, so it is not a late required response (pp. 23–24; C14). sTec, 30 May 2013: Enforced; your coding differs (3.1).	Yes. Question 7: A was recommended; now any accepted late required response is an extension (your convention, as Austin reported it), and two outcomes are added. A's prediction (both Enforced) holds.	Yes No
Comment:

As confirmed on 24 September, a regulatory concern rules out None without by itself setting the level; it needs no question.

3. Open decisions

3.1 Round maps under the listed triggers Decision 1

A round opens only at one of the listed target acts (2b, item 3). Where the target selects who advances, asks for nothing, and later sends its first request for final offers, v1.14.1 counts one round: a selection that asks for no offers opens no round, and the round opens at the request that follows (map A). Kraton and Datalink: decided, for information (comments welcome). Austin decided on 26 September that Datalink follows the v1.14.1 text, which replaces his earlier five-round ruling; Kraton follows the same text. Map B, where the selection is a round of its own, is shown for comparison. sTec is still open: did 16 May begin the final round? Maps come from a re-check of the current ledgers, updated for v1.14.1.

Kraton (pp. 33–39; C15)

Round	A. Selection and final letter are one round: two rounds (v1.14.1)	B. Selection and final letter each open a round: three rounds (current ledger)
1	24 May to 20 July 2021: outreach; due 29 June, then 19 July after the 6 July request to improve; Not final	Same
2	20 July admission of Parties A, H and Parent; diligence; final bid procedures letter, due 15 September; Announced as final; Extended (late bid accepted), as Party A's 17 September bid was considered	20 July admission and diligence; no request for bids; Not final
3	—	Final bid procedures letter after 11 August; due 15 September; Announced as final

Under B, round 2 would hold no request, due date or bid, because the 20 July selection asked for no offers. Your voice note (item 3) starts round 2 on 6 July, making the formal stage round 3; v1.14.1 keeps 6 July in round 1, as asking the same bidders to improve continues a round.

Datalink (pp. 27–32; C16)

Round	A. Selection and final letter are one round: four rounds (v1.14.1, decided)	B. Selection and final letter each open a round: five rounds (ruling of 21 September, superseded)
1	January to May 2016: bilateral talks with Party A, from 28 January, the first price negotiation	Same, from 29 January
2	June outreach, after more than 30 days with no request; indications due 18 and 21 July	Same
3	27 July selection of five bidders, diligence, then the 16 August letter; due 30 August; Announced as final	27 July selection and diligence only; no request; Not final
4	1 October re-approach to Parties B and C after Insight's exclusivity lapsed	16 August letter; due 30 August; Announced as final
5	—	1 October re-approach

Austin decided on 26 September that Datalink follows the v1.14.1 text: four rounds, as the listed triggers give. This replaces his ruling of 21 September (five rounds). Round 1 still starts with January's talks with Party A, but on 28 January, the first price negotiation, as v1.14.1 opens a round where buyers came to the target; the 21 September ruling had 29 January. The v1.14.1 retest extraction of Datalink gave map A. Your notes start round 1 at the bank's first contacts (June).

sTec (pp. 27–32; C4, C17)

Round	Map A: 16 May began the final round (recommended)	Map C: 16 May not final (your voice note)
1	April 2013 outreach; indications due 3 May; Not final	Same
2	From 15 or 16 May: letters to WDC and Company D; due 28 May (Extended), then best and final by 30 May (Enforced: no later due date was set); Announced as final; through WDC's withdrawal (31 May), return (10 June) and $6.85 bid (14 June) to signing	16 May letters, due 28 May; Enforced; Not final
3	—	From the 29 May request for best and final proposals, due 30 May; Enforced; Announced as final; to signing

Map A follows the target's "final round process letters"; map C, the minutes' "request for non-binding proposals" (both p. 30) and your voice note (item 6: "this is not the final round"). Your spring coding agrees with map A on the round count but extends the round to 10 June, where map A has 30 May Enforced (pp. 31–32). Map B, the current ledger, follows map A to 30 May, then opens round 3 after WDC's withdrawal on 31 May; no listed trigger supports it, as it came days, not 30 days, after the 30 May request, and no exclusivity period had ended.

Comments on Kraton and Datalink:

3.2 How counts are used in estimation (question 1) Decision 3, R3

For information: the ledger no longer records ranges. The unnamed members of a reported total with no reported offer are one row, recorded as not submitting by the first due date after they appear and marked inferred; its count is the total less the members recorded by name, with the arithmetic in one Note sentence. A named party that may belong to the total stays inside it. A qualified figure ("more than ten") keeps its qualifier and leaves the count blank. Datalink: 13 signers did not bid, that is 23 signers less Parties A, B and C, Insight and the six other bidders (pp. 28–29; C16). Mac-Gray: the 16 unnamed financial signers, by 23 July (pp. 32–33; C13). How should estimation use these counts?

A. As recorded, the same as reported counts.

B. As recorded, with a robustness check that sets aside the counts marked inferred; closest to the option recommended on 24 September.

C. Another way (say which).

Circle one: A B C Comment:

3.3 How analysis reads the ledger Decision 3b

Analysis computes every variant below and picks none.

(a) Which Formality reading is primary? Agreement with your labels on the v1.14.1 test extractions of 26 September, one per deal (a check, not a tuning target):

Reading	Bid counts as formal when	Mac-Gray: agree, of 13	Providence and Worcester: agree, of 14
T0	Formality as recorded	13	11
T1	Formal and not Heavy (Unclear counts as not Heavy)	11	12
T1u	As T1, but Unclear counts as Heavy	9	12
T2	Formal, with a single price, not a range	12	11
T3	Formal, in a round announced as final or inferred final	13	12

Your spring coding matches T0 (and T3) fully on Mac-Gray; no reading matches Providence and Worcester fully (T1, T1u and T3 each miss two bids). The ledgers have Formal with Heavy conditions where you coded Formal (Mac-Gray, Parties A and B, 18 September 2013; Party A's copies its earlier uncommitted financing (2a), and Party B's Financing Contingent comes from the committee's 19 September remark, which 2b item 6 uses) and where you coded Informal (Providence and Worcester, Party D on 20 July 2016). G&W's 21 July bid is Formal with Unclear conditions where you coded Informal, and its 26 July bid is Informal where you coded Formal (2b item 5). Under v1.14.1 a bid with nothing said about diligence is Unclear rather than Light, even with committed financing; CSC/Pamplona's 18 and 21 September bids are Unclear, which is why T1u falls on Mac-Gray.

(a) Circle one: T0 T1 T1u T2 T3 Comment:

(b) Settled, for information: same-price commitment changes are not new price observations. They stay Bid rows with the price blank (2a; C6), so the price is observed once. Austin decided this; it was option B.

(c) Do inferred exits enter as dropouts or as censoring? The ledger infers an unreported exit at the first point that applies and marks it as inferred. For example, Mac-Gray's 16 unnamed financial signers with no reported offer are one row, recorded as not submitting by 23 July, count 16 (3.2; C13).

A. Dropout, as for a reported exit.

B. Censoring: nothing is inferred about the bidder's value.

(c) Circle one: A dropout B censoring Comment:

3.4 Readings from part 2

sTec, Company H (pp. 29–30; C18). Settled, for information. Austin decided that the target dropped H: it was told its range was not enough to advance, and the final-round letters of 16 May went to WDC and Company D only, so H is recorded as dropped by the target by 16 May, with the reason “would not improve earlier offer” from its 23 May reply. Your coding has H's own drop.

Penford, Party A (pp. 31–32; C19). Proposed: 4 October (any offer would be below $17.50–$18.00) and 13 October (a reduced value range told to the bank) are valuation statements, not bids; the 14 October letter at $16.00 is its bid. The ledger raises no Question on it. This is what was proposed on 24 September.

Agree? Yes No Comment:

3.5 Which source governs

When your spring hand coding and August voice notes disagree, which governs? They differ on whether sTec's 16 May began the final round (3.1); on Providence and Worcester the voice note says Party A “never made it out of round one”, while the hand coding has it drop out on 22 July 2016.

A. The voice notes.

B. The hand coding.

C. As so far: a general rule stated in the notes governs; a remark about one deal's facts is a reading to confirm with you.

4. Case appendix

Excerpts are quoted exactly; “...” marks an omission; a date after a page number is the event date where the excerpt lacks it. Filings (DEFM14A unless stated): Mac-Gray, 4 December 2013; Synacor, Offer to Purchase (SC TO-T), 3 March 2021; Penford, 29 December 2014; sTec, 8 August 2013; Meredith, 8 November 2021; Kraton, 4 November 2021; Providence and Worcester, 20 September 2016; PetSmart, 2 February 2015; Datalink, 29 November 2016.

“On October 5, 2013, Kirkland delivered to Goodwin Procter a revised draft of the Pamplona commitment letter which, among other things, proposed that, in addition to CSC, Pamplona would be responsible in the event CSC failed to consummate the merger” (p. 39)

C14. PetSmart, due date, 2014

“non-binding preliminary indications of interest would be due on October 30, 2014.” (p. 23)

“On October 30, six of the potentially interested parties submitted indications of interest. From October 30 to November 2, 2014, representatives of J.P. Morgan spoke by telephone with all of the potentially interested parties ... to hear the parties’ respective rationales for the price levels suggested in their indications ... As a result of its discussions with J.P. Morgan, another bidder (which we refer to as “Bidder 2”), which had initially indicated a price of $78.00, increased its indication to a range of $81.00 to $84.00 per share.” (p. 24)

“The board determined to allow the four bidders that had indicated a price or range at or above $80.00 per share to proceed to the final round” (p. 24; 3 November)

C15. Kraton, rounds, 2021

“Following the Board meeting on August 11, 2021 ... J.P. Morgan provided a final bid procedures letter to Party A, Party H, and Parent that requested these bidders to submit ... final indications of interest by September 15, 2021.” (p. 37)
